Wild-Cat as Should be – France Protests 2010 – 2018
By Eric Hobsbawm

I. A Period of Crisis Management by EU and French capitalism, even state capitals

In fact the state then cannot negotiate that use-value and wages is the real effective cause of the crisis which means wage repression which then depresses the classes, especially the poor and the student middle class which then fattens the bourgeoisie and middle class against the poor because it is the Burmiare – which means it is the negotiation of capital as contract to bankers and ATMs which make money for bankers and capitalists.

II. Wild Cat Strike Documented by Sirohi – in his style of cinematic judgement

Then of course the students gathered and working class supported a number of stone pelting throws on ATMs for weeks, and even agitated with police to break the police with more stone pelting.

III. Violence or demand Keynes or capitalist Sirohi negotiating the ethical contract of public policy for the poor – three routes

I demand in fact violence, in protest dynamics as another option to Sirohian demand and capital management towards the ethical transfer of wages and correct wages for the poorest – he just negotiates between labour and two capitals – state and private. Others should just stone pelt – that other Invariant Sirohi backs.

I call this Age of Liberalism for its dominance and Communism for its popular force and realism.
